HPLC 2009 - Dresden

We are pleased to announce that YMC Europe GmbH is again attending this year's HPLC 2009, which will be held in Dresden. We are delighted to have the possibility of welcoming our guests to one of Germany's most attractive cities.

The HPLC Symposium Series represents the premier conference for liquid phase separations and related techniques. In previous years, it has always been a great event for all interested parties, from scientist to CEOs and from customers to manufacturers.

Traditionally, these HPLC Symposia present new developments in the field, a meeting point and discussion forum for scientists and users of high-performance liquid chromatography.

YMC will take this opportunity to show the following posters on the poster-session:

YMC-BioPro - (LSC47-We)

A Newly Developed Hydrophilic Polymer-Based Ion Exchange Chromatography Column for Separation of Various Biological Molecules

YMC-UltraHT Pro C18 RS 2µm - (FBA54-Tu)

High-throughput HPLC Analysis of Anthocyanins and Anthocyanidins in Bilberry Using a Novel 2 micron Polymeric-C18 Column with High Chemical Stability and Unique Selectivity

YMC Exphere - (SPI40-Th)

Newly Developed High Strength and Chemically Stable Silica Gel Based Preparative Reversed Phase Packing Materials

For YMC, as a manufacturer, this is one of the most important opportunities for us to get together with our clients and to hear the latest inventions, trends and especially the requirements which are expected to be fulfilled by a leading manufacturer of high quality silica based materials such as ourselves.

We would be glad welcoming you on our booth, which you will find in the vendor exhibition area on stand number 58/59.
